Statement of Purpose

Northeastern University Global Network

Northeastern University is a global nonprofit higher education institution, with an R1 Carnegie Classification and a Top 50 National University ranking from US News & World Report. Northeastern is internationally renowned for its highly differentiated experiential education, lifelong learning and use-inspired research programs. Northeastern is a university unlike any other: committed to understanding and solving the challenges facing the real world, by fostering talent and generating the knowledge that will enable a better society.

Northeastern's programs are deeply aligned with—and intertwined—the needs and realities of employers of every type: industry, government, and nonprofit. Northeastern's signature co-op programs place thousands of students with employers for 6-month work assignments across 3,000 partner organizations. Northeastern's research activities—focused on health, security and sustainability—have grown in funding from government and industry alike by over 300% in the last 15 years: an unprecedented trajectory in the recent history of higher education.

Northeastern's global network of campuses—13 locations in total throughout the United States, Canada and the UK—serve as portals to all that Northeastern has to offer. Northeastern's signature campuses are integrally tied to the economic development goals and initiatives of the local ecosystem. At every campus location, Northeastern seeks to align its strengths with the needs of employees, employers, governments, and civic organizations in order for each to realize their potential through learning and discovery.

History and Governance

Northeastern University, founded 1898 in Boston, Massachusetts, is a private, non-profit global research university, and a worldwide leader in experiential education. Northeastern University received degree-granting authority from the Great and General Court of Massachusetts through a legislative act in 1920 and has maintained its good standing in accreditation from the New England Commission of Higher Education (NECHE) since it was first awarded in 1940. All Northeastern University programs fall within the university-wide accreditation process, assessment, and review by the New England Commission of Higher Education.

Northeastern University continuously self-assesses and formally reports every five years on its compliance with the nine Standards set forth by NECHE. Northeastern completed its standard ten-year re-accreditation process with NECHE in March 2019. At the heart of the self-study process were data, documents, and information gathered from across the university. Each of Northeastern's academic programs and regional campuses, in addition to the administrative offices of the university, contribute to representing the institutions goals and accomplishments in learning and research. As a result of this comprehensive review process, Northeastern has received accreditation valid through Spring 2029.

Northeastern University Mission

To educate students for a life of fulfillment and achievement.

To create and translate knowledge to meet global and societal needs.

Miami Campus

Northeastern is a university tightly tethered to the real world. Defined by its connection to employers—through its co-op program and its commitment to use-inspired research—Northeastern’s mission is to prepare students and develop solutions to have an impact on the world’s needs today, and tomorrow. The signature differentiator Northeastern will bring to the South Florida ecosystem is the unique opportunity for all learners, in any program, to engage with real-world employers through experiential learning. Northeastern combines curricular and co-curricular programs with relevant professional experiences designed to develop students’ broad knowledge, intellectual creativity, and analytical skills. This integrated experiential model prepares students to be active, impactful participants in our evolving society and economy—engaged global citizens and leaders, successful professionals, and self-directed lifelong learners. Northeastern’s educational programs foster formal and informal knowledge-sharing networks that meet the learning needs of students at every stage throughout their lives.

Northeastern’s signature campuses are integrally tied to the economic development goal and initiatives of the local ecosystem. At every campus location, Northeastern seeks to align its strengths with the needs of employees, employers, governments, and civic organizations in order for each to realize their potential.

Building on the models that have successfully deployed across our global network of campuses, we will enable the creation of pathways into new and promising careers for our students, citizens of Miami, and those seeking to take part in the emerging economic opportunities.

Accreditation

Resume

GRE

Northeastern University is GRE test-optional for the 2024-2025 academic year and does not require applicants to submit standardized testing to be considered for admission. Northeastern is committed to partnering with you, your family, and your educational institution to support your individual needs. As of October 2021, the Department of Chemical Engineering is not considering GRE scores for PhD or MS applicants; applicants to Chemical Engineering should therefore not submit their GRE scores.

TOEFL, IELTS, or Duolingo

Applicants who are non-U.S. citizens or non-U.S. permanent residents, regardless of the applicant's undergraduate language of instruction must submit official TOEFL, IELTS, and/or Duolingo scores.

Waiver

Applicants are exempt from the TOEFL, IELTS, or Duolingo exam requirement if they hold (or will hold) a degree from an accredited institution located in the United States of America, Canada (excluding Quebec), United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Ireland, South Africa, Nigeria, Uganda, Australia, or New Zealand.

Minimum Score Requirements

TOEFL: 79 overall (internet-based); IELTS: 6.5 overall; Duolingo: 105

Note: Applicants to the Electrical and Computer Engineering department are required to submit the minimum score requirement:

TOEFL: 95

IELTS: 7.0

Duolingo: 115

Sending Scores

TOEFL: Send scores via ETS, Institution code is 3665; no department code is needed.

IELTS: Official IELTS score reports should be uploaded as a PDF directly to the application in which the Test Report Form (TRF) number is visible. This number can be found in a text box towards the bottom right of the IELTS score results page. If uploaded correctly, we will verify the IELTS scores online and applicant will not need to send hard copies of the score report.

Duolingo: Upon completion of the test, please select College of Engineering at Northeastern University to receive the scores.

If the applicant does not meet the minimum TOEFL, IELTS, or Duolingo requirements and the applicant is intending to apply to a graduate engineering program at the master of science level, students are encouraged to apply first to Northeastern University's Global Pathways Program, where a student can boost their English language skills and academic knowledge before beginning engineering coursework.

Eligibility to Apply

Generally, to be qualified for admissions consideration, applicants are required to hold (or be pursuing) an undergraduate engineering or technology degree in a closely related major.

Students with non-engineering bachelor's degrees are eligible for some graduate engineering degree programs. View available programs and eligibility requirements.

International Student Admissions

International students More than 7,500 international students and scholars from 140 different countries study here — advancing the university's cross-cultural understanding and bringing a unique, valued perspective to the classroom. The application process varies based on the program or college international students choose to apply to. Steps listed on our Application Checklist generally apply to every graduate applicant, but there are additional requirements for non-U.S. citizens or non-U.S. permanent residents.

Most programs require international students show proof of English proficiency, which can be met by submitting official TOEFL, IELTS, or PTE exam scores. Preferred minimum scores vary by college. Students may be exempt from the requirement if they submit documentation proving they received a bachelor's or master's degree from a college or university in which English was the only language of instruction.

International students will also need to complete an I-20 request form, as well as submit a copy of their passport or permanent residency card, after being admitted into their desired program.
